Harry Houdini

Even remarkable and historically significant people like Harry Houdini have to find a job! And to get a job, you often need a resume. A resume is a summary of someone's experience—their work life, their personal accomplishments, their education—that they share in order to get a job that they want.

Using what you've learned about Houdini (and your creativity and imagination!) create a resume for him that will help him to get the job that he wants.
