Now that you're an expert on Matthew Henson, let's help others learn about him!

Can you come up with an idea for a product or place that would be fun, interesting or funny if it were based on his life? It can be a restaurant, an amusement park, a toy or maybe a tasty snack food? The only limit is your imagination!

Whatever it is, think about how it will help other kids understand who Henson was and what important things he did in his lifetime.

Create a sketch of your idea below. Then on a separate sheet of paper write out a detailed description of your idea. Be sure to describe the different parts of your sketch to help us understand what they are and how this place or product might teach others about Henson.

Once you're done with the first two parts of this activity, think about how you might 'pitch' your idea to others to see if they might want to visit or buy it.
